Open Letter from the President/ Chairperson for the Booklet

October 2008

Dear Friends:

Welcome to the 32st annual celebration of Italian Heritage and Culture

Month. This year we will celebrate the 500th anniversary of Andrea Palladio's birth. Therefore, the Board of Directors has selected "Andrea Palladio: Architect For The Ages - 1508-1580" as the official theme for the celebration.

The IHCC-NY, Inc. joins the world in celebrating the genius of Andrea Palladio, one of the most influential and imitated architects of all times. Born Andrea di Pietro della Gondola in Padova, in the Republic of Venice, Palladio began his career as an apprentice stonecutter at the age of thirteen years and by sixteen years of age was working in nearby Vicenza with the leading masons and stonecutters under the patronage of Count Gian Giorgio Trissino, his mentor and patron. It was Trissino who first called him Palladio, a reference to the Greek Goddess of wisdom, Pallas Athene. Palladio was given his first work on a building project by Trissino and through his direction studied and traveled to Rome where he was inspired by classical Roman architecture. Thus began his style, after which an entire movement was named: Palladian, most remarkable for its beauty, harmony and use of columns, domes, arches, pediments and a flattened classical portico. Subsequent commissions from the richest Venetian society brought him fame and more commissions, so that his body of work included country villas, urban palaces, civic structures, churches and bridges. He compiled his knowledge into the treatise The Four Books of Architecture, translated into English in 1715, one of the most definitive works on architecture.

His work was and still is admired, copied and interpreted by architects, especially in England, Ireland and America. The great English architect Christopher Wren borrowed from Palladio for London's magnificent structures, such as

St. Paul's Cathedral. Thomas Jefferson specifically drew his plans for Monticello after Palladian designs. One can find examples of Palladian architecture, especially in all of the glorious columned and domed buildings in Washington, DC and Virginia, but also in several in Baltimore, New York and elsewhere. In greater New York, to mention only a few, the Grand Central Station, Harvard Club and Morgan Library are in the Palladian style while the Hudson City Savings Bank, Hudson Columbia Courthouse and Plattsburgh City Hall all enjoy Palladian architecture.

Throughout 2008 there are celebrations worldwide to commemorate Palladio's work, most notably in Italy beginning with the Italian National Committee Andrea Palladio 500 events and several sponsored by the Institute of Classical Architecture and Classical America in New York. A comprehensive Palladio exhibit, curated by the Centro Internazionale di Studi di Architettura Andrea Palladio, Vicenza, and the Royal Academy of Arts, London, shown in Italy throughout 2008, will travel to England and America in 2009.

You are enthusiastically and wholeheartedly invited to join us in this celebration to partake of, and participate in, as many activities listed in the calendar of events as you can. With us, the members of the Italian Heritage and Culture Committee – NY, Inc., a Board second to none in its enthusiasm and grace of life as Italophiles - I encourage you to celebrate!

Grazie a tutti e buon divertimento!

Appreciation is expressed to sculptor, Maestro Silvio Amelio, from Taverna, Province of Catanzaro, Italy for The Leonardo Da Vinci Award design.

Whereas, the Empire State recognizes the contributions made by people of Italian ancestry both past and present – living here in America and in the homeland – who throughout the course of time have had a profound influence on mankind and, during the month of October, we join in the celebration of the 32nd Annual Italian Heritage and Culture Month and a rich history rooted in an ancient civilization, as all Italian Americans look forward to a future of continued success; and

Whereas, we welcome the opportunity to honor the Italian culture, history, language and accomplishments during this year’s celebration highlighting the theme “Andrea Palladio: Architect for the Ages,” and we join to honor the 500th anniversary of the birth of Palladio and the life and legacy of this great Italian genius who was one of the most influential and imitated architects of all time; and

Whereas, evidence of the impressive contributions Andrea Palladio made to the art and science of architecture is visible in the landscape and skyline of cities worldwide, and can be found today in exquisite buildings and monuments reflecting what has come to be known as the “Palladium style”; and

Whereas, born in Padua, Italy, Palladio endowed an extraordinary inheritance upon his native country in the form of magnificent architectural masterpieces, and his works have long been admired by people from around the globe and, so historically significant are Palladio's surviving buildings, that collectively they are included in the UNESCO World Heritage List; and

Whereas, while universally considered a genius for the physical manifestation of his architectural ideas, Palladio has had an equally permanent and lasting impact through his conceived works, most notable among them The Four Books of Architecture which include a dissertation on architectural history, and this treatise ranks among the most influential publications on architecture ever produced and has shaped much of Western civilization, as a primary source of classical design from American colonial times to present day; and

Whereas, Thomas Jefferson called Palladio's The Four Books the "bible" for architectural practice and he applied Palladio's principles in establishing early standards for America's public architecture, especially that of our Nation's Capital, and, as a man of truly extraordinary intellect, Palladio was a quintessential visionary whose revolutionary style and original drawings depicting the reconstruction and restoration of ancient Roman temples in The Four Books provided inspiration for many of the great American classical works of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, in the period known as the American Renaissance; and

Whereas, marking the height of the classical tradition, the American Renaissance enriched our country from coast to coast with countless architectural works of timeless dignity and beauty, and many monuments that were inspired both directly and indirectly by the writings, illustrations and designs of Palladio, remain a cherished aspect of our cultural heritage and our entire nation celebrates the spirit of Italian genius found in the architectural masterpieces of Andrea Palladio and, as home to a thriving and innovative Italian American population, all New Yorkers join to celebrate the wonderful gift of scientific, artistic, literary and cultural accomplishment bestowed by Italian civilization throughout the centuries;

Now, Therefore, I, David A. Paterson, Governor of the State of New York, do hereby proclaim October 2008 as in the Empire State.

Given under my hand and the Privy Seal of the State at the Capitol in the City of Albany this first day of October in the year two thousand eight.

David A. Paterson

Governor

GOB

Secretary of the Governor

Adolfo Carrion, Jr

President of the Borough of

Presents this

Proclamation

Whereas: The Italian Heritage and Culture Month is being celebrated city-wide in honor of the renowned Andrea Palladio: Architect for the Ages in celebration of the 500th Anniversary of his birth; and

Whereas: In his adopted town of Vicenza, Venice, he published the master work that ensured his place in architectural history - The Four Books of Architecture- which has been printed and translated around the world, having impact on many generations of architects; and

Whereas: I extend my gratitude and appreciation to the Italian Heritage and Culture Committee and its dedicated members for keeping the legacy of Italian genius alive.

Now, therefore, I, Adolfo Carrión, Jr., President of the Borough of the Bronx, pay tribute to our Italian-American community who has contributed culturally, politically and scientifically to our great borough, city and country. I do hereby proclaim October 2008 as

Whereas Brooklyn is still and will always be, one of the largest Italian –American centers in the United States – and is the largest if we include the residents of Brooklyn’s southwestern suburb: Staten island – it is most fitting to recognize our Italian –American community and take note of the important cultural, political and social aspects of Italian heritage that have greatly enriched the quality of life in our borough; and

Whereas, Brooklyn joins in the New York City-wide celebrazione of Italian-American Heritage Month, to pay tribute to the rich Italian heritage that is reflected throughout our great borough from unsurpassed restaurants to all areas of public service, to recognize those distinguished citizens of Italian descent who have made outstanding contributions to the betterment of our borough, state and nation, and to celebrate the birth–five hundred years ago–of Andrea Palladio one of history’s most famous architects; and

Whereas, on behalf of all Brooklynites, I salute the legacy of Andrea Palladio-widely considered the most influential architect in western history-known for his designs of the palaces, churches and villas in Vicenza, Venice, and for his impact on generations of architects around the world in the neoclassic style, I commend our borough’s proud Italian –American community for their man outstanding Achievements, as we honor and acknowledge the great significance of their contributions during Italian –American Heritage Month, and for all their efforts in preserving the memory of Palladio who helped to define world architecture;

Now, therefore, I, Marty Markowitz, President of the Borough of Brooklyn, do hereby proclaim the month of October, 2008

Italian-American Heritage Month In Brooklyn, USA

In witness whereof, I have here unto set my hand and caused the seal of the Borough of Brooklyn to be affixed this 15th day of October, 2008.

President of the Borough of Brooklyn

Office of the Manhattan Borough President
City of New York

Whereas: Italian Heritage and Culture month is celebrating the 500th Anniversary of the birth of the Italian architect Andrea Palladio; and

Whereas: Andrea Palladio remains the most influential architect in the history of architecture – 450 years ago his country houses, called villas began to appear in the countryside of the Veneto, the mainland province around Venice; and

Whereas: Andrea Palladio's villas revolutionized Western architecture in the 17th and 18th Centuries, and changed the way homes look in our contemporary world; and

Whereas: Palladio's Quattro Libri dell'Architettura shaped much of the architectural image of Western civilization and is and has been a major source of classical design for many of American builders and architects from colonial times to the present; and

Whereas: Manhattan's most iconic buildings: City Hall; Gracie Mansion; Tweed Court House; Morgan Library; Grand Central Station; Harvard Club and The Metropolitan Museum of Art, reflect the influence of Palladio's architectural style through the Anglo-Palladian movement;

Now therefore, I, Scott M. Stringer, President of the Borough of Manhattan, recognize and celebrate the legacy of Andrea Palladio, and hereby proclaim October 2008, to be

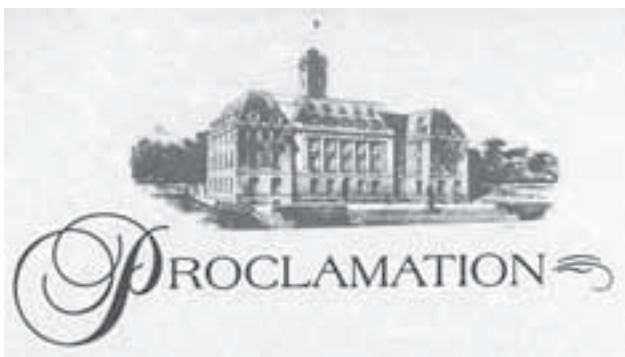

“Italian Heritage and Cultural Month”

Commemorating the 500th Anniversary of the Birth of Andrea Palladio.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the Borough of Manhattan to be affixed.

Scott M. Stringer
President, Borough of Manhattan

Whereas: Staten Island is home to more Italian-Americans than any other County in the United States of America; and

Whereas: To celebrate the myriad contributions Italian-Americans have made to the social, cultural, and economic well-being of our City, State, and Nation, the Borough President's Office created Staten Island's Columbus Day Parade in 1991, which has become a favorite October tradition for all those who are Italian-American, or just Italian at heart; and

Whereas: Each year, the Board of Directors of the Italian Heritage and Culture Committee of New York, Inc., selects a theme, and this year will be commemorating the 500th anniversary of the birth of "Andrea Palladio: Architect for the Ages 1508-1580"; and

Whereas: Staten Islanders of all ethnic backgrounds applaud Italian-American New Yorkers for their commitment to sharing the wonders of Italian culture with us, for their status as model citizens and for their remarkable record of service to our City,

NOW, THEREFORE, I, JAMES P. MOLINARO

President of the Borough of Staten Island, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the laws of the City and State of New York, do hereby proclaim the Month of October, 2008 as in the Borough of Staten Island.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the seal of the Borough of Staten Island

Buddy: The Rise and Fall of America's

Most Notorious Mayor

September 4 6:00 pm

Directed by Cherry Arnold. As the longest-serving mayor in recent history, Vincent "Buddy" Cianci of Providence, Rhode Island remains one of the country's most controversial political figures. Cianci's unflagging popularity and extraordinary career comebacks have baffled political analysts and frustrated federal investigators. From Buddy's early promise as an attorney prosecuting organized crime to his success overseeing Providence's "renaissance," the film tracks Cianci's entanglements with city council, his union skirmishes, personal scandals and criminal indictments. The result is a fascinating study of American local politics and a surprising tale of a man who, it has been said, to have "a city as his mistress." Douglas Muzzio of Baruch College leads the post-screening discussion with the director. Light refreshments will be served. Seating is limited. Sponsored by the John D. Calandra Italian American Institute, Queens College/CUNY.

Karen Tintori Reads from Unto the Daughters: The Legacy of an Honor Killing in a Sicilian-American Family

September 15 6:00 pm

Unto the Daughters is a historical mystery that unwraps layers of family, honor, memory and fear to reveal an honor killing in Detroit at the turn of the 20th century. The book began with a genealogical quest that led to a reluctant revelation about Frances Costa, Karen Tintori's great-aunt who had been systematically eradicated from family history. Tintori traces the history of her Sicilian immigrant past to expose the fetid secret of Frances' brutal murder at the hands of her own brothers, fiercely guarded for nine decades. Light refreshments will be served. Seating is limited. Sponsored by the John D. Calandra Italian American Institute, Queens College/CUNY.

The Intrepid Giuseppe Pitre and his Collection of Sicilian Folk Tales

September 18 6:00 pm

The true treasures of European folklore are buried not in Germany, but in Sicily, and the greatest European folklorist of the nineteenth century was Giuseppe Pitre (1841-1916). Pitre was born into a family of fishermen in Palermo and became a medical doctor, councilman and professor. He wrote over forty books and collected hundreds of fairy tales, legends, anecdotes, riddles, and myths and published them in the Sicilian dialect. Pitre's is the most important nineteenth-century collection of tales in dialect. Jack Zipes of the University of Minnesota, and Joseph Russo of Haverford College translated the tales and edited a two volume collection, The Collected Sicilian Folk and Fairy Tales of Giuseppe Pitre. They will discuss the significance of Pitre's life and works, and read from the collection. Light refreshments will be served. Seating is limited. This is part of the Philip V. Cannistraro Seminar Series in Italian American Studies. Sponsored by the John D. Calandra Italian American Institute, Queens College/CUNY.

FIAC: Forum on Italian American Criticism

October 3 & 4 8:30 am - 6:30 pm

During the past 15 years, Italian American Studies have made great strides at all levels including: increased archival work and the publication of rare or forgotten materials; an increasing amount of college course offerings and the establishment of newer academic programs; and a proliferation of far ranging critical productions, translations and international conferences. The new Alfonse M.

D'Amato Chair in Italian and Italian American Studies at Stony Brook University is now poised to launch the first annual conference—Forum on Italian American Criticism (FIAC)—with the aim of taking stock of these advances, affecting a critique or better self-critique, and proposing new hermeneutical models of analysis for the future. Columbus Celebration Exhibitions

in Grand Central Terminal

Exhibitions in Vanderbilt Hall are an integral part of the annual Columbus Celebration, the largest celebration of Italian and Italian-American culture in the world. This year's exhibit will showcase Italy's beauty and culture with "The Great White Fleet" which documents the heroic efforts of Italian and American servicemen who, in 1908, came together in one of the greatest humanitarian efforts in European history to aid earthquake victims of Sicily and southern Italy where an estimated 200,000 people had perished. This exhibit culminates with the Columbus Day Parade on Fifth Avenue on October 13th. Sponsored by the Columbus Citizens Foundation.

Beyond Wiseguys: Italian Americans and the Movies

October 7 6:00 pm

Directed by Steven Fischler. Filled with classic film clips and all-star interviews, Beyond Wiseguys: Italian Americans and the Movies takes a comprehensive look at the changing and diverse roles Italian Americans have played on the silver screen. Selections from early films reveal the images that helped shape negative public opinion, while movies like Scarface, The Godfather, Goodfellas, and Do the Right Thing demonstrate how the violent “wiseguy” image developed and evolved into the nuanced portraits seen today. The issue of stereotyping isn’t a facile one. Commercial formulas also serve as wellsprings for creative expression for Italian American film artists, and this documentary offers compelling insights into how Italian Americans use their art to transcend the stereotypes. Featured in the film are: Ben Gazzara, Spike Lee, Isabella Rossellini, Susan Sarandon, Martin Scorsese, Paul Sorvino, Marisa Tomei, John Turturro and Jack Valenti, among others. Post-screening discussion with producer Rosanne de Luca Braun will be led by Anthony Julian Tamburri of the Calandra Institute. Light refreshments will be served. Seating is limited. ITALIAN HERITAGE AND CULTURE MONTH • 2008 ANDREA PALLADIO 1508 - 1580

Andrea Palladio (November 30, 1508 – August 19, 1580), was an Italian architect, widely considered the most influential person in the history of Western architecture.

He was born Andrea di Pietro della Gondola in Padova, part of the Republic of Venice. Apprenticed as a stonecutter in Padova at 13, he broke his contract after 18 months and fled to Vicenza. There he became an assistant in the leading workshop of stonecutters and masons. He frequented the workshop of Bartolomeo Cavazza, where he learned some of his skills.

His talents were first recognized by Count Gian Giorgio Trissino, who employed the young mason. Trissino also gave him the name by which he is now known, Palladio, an allusion to the Greek goddess of wisdom Pallas Athene. Palladio later benefited from the patronage of the Barbaro family. The Palladian style, named after him, adhered to classical Roman principles. His architectural works have been valued for centuries as the quintessence of High Renaissance calm and harmony. Palladio designed many churches, villas, and palaces, especially in Venice, Vicenza and the surrounding area.

Chronology

- 1508: Born in Padua on November 30
- 1521: Begins work as a stone mason
- 1540: Begins first work, Villa Godi in Lonedo

the palace of Iseppo De' Porti

- 1554: Begins Villa Barbaro in Maser
- 1556: In Udine he works on Casa Antonini and in Vicenza begins with Palazzo Thiene. He collaborates with Daniele Barbaro, patriarch of Aquileia, on his commentary on Vitruvius, providing the drawings.
- 1557: Begins Villa Badoer
- 1558: Realizes a project for the church of San Pietro di Castello in Venice and probably in the same year begins the construction of Villa Malcontenta
- 1559: Begins Villa Emo in the village of Fanzolo di Vedelago
- 1561: Begins the construction of Villa Pojana Maggiore , the refectory of the Benedictine San Giorgio Monastery, the facade of Monastero per la Carità and Villa Serego
- 1562: Begins the facade of San Francesco della Vigna and San Giorgio Maggiore
- 1565: Begins the construction of Villa Cagollo in Vicenza and Villa Pisani in Montagnana

From "Terrone" to "Extra-Comunitario": The Evolution of Racism in Italian Cinema

October 20 6:00 pm

In films of the New Italian Cinema such as Rocco e I suoi fratelli, and Ciao Professore! the "Southern question" takes on the cast of racism, with racial cultural differences often overlapping. After the watershed years of the 1980s and 1990s, the discourse on racial identity and new definitions of ethnicity became full-blown with a spate of films that explored and redefined the boundaries of culture, ethnicity and otherness. What does it mean to be "Italian" in today's multicultural Italy? This presentation by Grace Russo Bullaro, from Lehman College, will provide an overview of the current "migration cinema," tracing the evolution of the discourse of "racism" from the 1950s to the current wave of films by directors such as Gianni Amelio, Carlo Mazzacurati, Francesco Munzi and Ferzan Ozpetek. Light refreshments will be served. Seating is limited. This is part of the Philip V. Cannistraro Seminar Series in Italian American Studies. Sponsored by the John D. Shadows of Light:
Stereotypes in the Classroom and on the Streets

Dr. Fred Gardaphé, Distinguished Professor of English and Italian American Studies at Queens College, will speak about stereotypes in the classroom and on the streets. This lecture deals with the persistent stereotypes that distort perceptions of Italian Americans and explains where they come from and how they have been maintained by society and Italian Americans themselves. According to Prof. Gardaphe, “My suggestion for change is that Italian Americans become more public with their culture, to exchange ignorance for knowledge and prejudice with trust. If we achieve this in the classroom we can turn our students into teachers, who will make the streets a better place. This can be done by inundating the classrooms, the museums, the libraries, theaters, and media with versions and visions of Italian American culture that place those stereotypes in the shadow of the great lights we have created for the world to see.” This is one of the events in celebration of Italian American Heritage Month. Come and join us! This is a “PG” CLUE event. Sponsored by the Pluralism and Diversity Program, College of Staten Island.

Marisa Labozzetta Reads from At the Copa

October 27 6:00 pm

With humor and poignancy, these stories expose the social and sexual turmoil of men and women in “the old age of youth.” In “The Knife Lady,” a seemingly happily married suburbanite receives a jolt of sexual panic with the visit of a woman selling knives. The husband in “Future Games” encourages his wife to have an affair with another man to save their floundering marriage, and the resulting drama is parsed through the uncomprehending eyes of their young daughter. Another story tells of a restless dentist on a visit to a bizarre charlatan and discovers an unlikely cure to what's ailing him. These are a few of the stories whose primary fault zone is the seemingly stable, often secretly troubled, middle-class marriage seen from various views. Light refreshments will be served. Seating is limited. Sponsored by the John D. Calandra Italian American Institute, Queens College/CUNY.

Poetry in Action: A Portrait of Vincent Ferrini

November 10 6:00 pm

Directed by Henry Ferrini. Poetry in Action captures the world of poet Vincent Ferrini and his commitment to the unity of art and life in what he called “the living poem.” The film portrays the forces that shaped this artist’s life: his immigrant parents, factory work, the Great Depression, the Communist Party, and the town of Gloucester, Massachusetts where he lived until his passing in December 2007. The filmmaker and poet’s nephew, Henry Ferrini, captured the idiosyncrasies of the man and the ever-changing landscape of their town of Gloucester. Vincent Ferrini was also a teacher, historian, spokesman, and social activist. His passion, magnetic presence and unyielding creativity make for an energizing portrait of an artist and his community. Post-screening discussion with the director led by Prof. Fred Gardaphè of Queens College.

Light refreshments will be served. Seating is limited. This is part of the Film and Video Series: Documented Italians. Sponsored by the John D. Calandra Italian American Institute, Queens College/CUNY.

Magic in the Mezzogiorno: The Anthropology of Ernesto De Martino

November 17 6:00 pm

Lecture by Prof. Dorothy Louise Zinn (Università degli Studi della Basilicata) will discuss the work of Ernesto De Martino. De Martino (1908-1965) is widely acknowledged to be a founding figure of cultural anthropology in Italy, and yet his work remains almost entirely unknown in English-speaking countries. A brilliant and eclectic thinker, De Martino conducted several research expeditions in Southern Italy and the ethnographies he wrote remain classic works in Italian humanities. Employing a multidisciplinary perspective, De Martino's approach to potions and healing charms, and the dancing frenzy induced by the bite of the Apulian taranta, embraced religious history, folklore, ethnopsychiatry, and ethnomusicology. Anthropologist Dorothy Louis Zinn, translated and annotated De Martino's The Land of Remorse: A Study of Southern Italian Tarantism (Free Association, 2005) will discuss his research on the magical world of Southern Italian peasantry. Camilla Trinchieri Reads from The Price of Silence

November 19 6:00 pm

Trinchieri weaves a thrilling, psychological tale regarding the nature of family, love, longing and loss. Having taken a young Chinese woman under her wing, respected teacher Emma Perotti finds herself on trial for the young woman's murder. Almost five years earlier, An-ling Huang walked into Emma's ESL classroom and into her family's life. Emma was drawn to the vulnerability she perceived in An-Ling. An-Ling, for her part, seemed to long for a surrogate mother and eagerly attached herself to Emma. Emma's husband, Tom, resented An-ling's intrusion and his wife's affection for her, while their son, Josh developed his own relationship with her. Dredging up painful memories and buried grief, An-ling's presence threatened to tear the family apart. Light refreshments will be served. Seating is limited. Sponsored by the John D. Se la pietra sapesse parlare (If Stone Could Speak)

December 2 6:00 pm

Directed by Randy Croce. Thousands of stonecutters emigrated from northern Italy to Barre, Vermont, the “Granite Capital of the World.” These scalpellini carved impressive sculptures that still grace public spaces, churches and cemeteries across America. This documentary follows the artisans and their families from quarries, workshops, and schools in Italy to granite carving sheds in New England. It chronicles the magnificent monuments of these master carvers, as well as their life and death struggle with silicosis—a lung fibrosis caused by the inhalation of dust containing silica. The film depicts the immigrants’ distinctive community in America and their continued ties with their areas of origin. The audience sees how these stonecutters and their families continue to move between two countries and two cultures, while seeking their own identities—choosing what to keep and what to cut away. Post-screening discussion with the director will be led by visual artist, B. Amore. Light refreshments will be served. Seating is limited. Sponsored by the John D. Robert Tinnell Presents Feast of the Seven Fishes

December 3 6:00 pm

A 2006 Eisner Award-nominee for Best Graphic Album: Reprint, "Feast of the Seven Fishes" is a hardcover collection of the online strip serialized in 2004-2005 by writer Robert Tinnell and artists Ed Piskor and Alex Saviuk. A romantic comedy, the Feast evolves around an Italian-American family's celebration of the traditional Christmas Eve dinner. The year is 1983 and one of the younger members of the family, who resides in a West Virginia mining and mill town, brings home a blonde, blue-eyed Protestant girl to share in both the cooking and eating. Their path to romance, however, is not an easy one. This collection incorporates recipes from the families of Tinnell and his wife, Shannon. Light refreshments will be served. Seating is limited. COMMEMORATING the 200th Anniversary of the birth of the Italian Inventor
Antonio Meucci on April 13, 2008

WHEREAS, It is the sense of this Assembled body to pay tribute and commend those internationally recognized individuals associated with the State of New York whose outstanding and creative mind, achievements and contributions have improved the quality of life for our State and Nation: and

WHEREAS, It is also the sense of this Assembled Body to commemorate significant events which represent turning points in our unique history and which are indelibly etched in the saga of our great Nation; and

WHEREAS, Attendant to such concern, and in full accord with its long-standing traditions, this Assembled Body is justly proud to commemorate the 200th Anniversary of the birth of the distinguished Italian inventor Antonio Meucci on April 13, 2008; and

WHEREAS, Antonio Meucci was born in Florence, Italy, in 1808 he studied chemical and mechanical engineering at the Florence Academy of Fine Arts; later he worked at the world renowned Teatro della Pergola in Florence as a stage technician; and

WHEREAS, In 1834, Antonio Meucci constructed a kind of acoustic telephone as a way to communicate between the stage and control room at Teatro della Pergola, modeled on pipe-telephones used on ships: and

WHEREAS, , in October 1835, Antonio Meucci and his wife, the costume designer, Estere Mochi, emigrated to Havana, Cuba, where Meucci accepted a position at the Great Tacon Theater; while in Havana, he constructed a system of water purification, and also reconstructed the Gran Teatro which had been destroyed by a hurricane; and

WHEREAS, In 1849, Antonio Meucci developed a popular method of using electric shocks to treat illness, and subsequently made an experimental device through which one could hear an inarticulate human voice; he called his device the "talk telegraph" and

WHEREAS, On April 13, 1850 Antonio Meucci and his wife left Cuba and immigrated to the United States; upon arrival in New York, they settled in the Rosebank area of Staten Island, where they would live for the rest of their lives; and

WHEREAS, While living on Staten Island, Antonio Meucci invested in a tallow candle factory, the first of its kind in America, and helped several of his countrymen committed to the Italian unification movement, hosting his friends, General Giuseppe Garibaldi and Colonel Paolo Bovi; and

Whereas, 1856, Antonio Meucci reportedly constructed the electromagnetic telephone by setting up a voice communication link in his Staten Island home that connected his basement laboratory with the second floor; and

WHEREAS, Antonio Meucci's innovative communications breakthrough has long had champions arguing that Antonio Meucci, instead of Alexander Graham Bell, should be credited with the invention of the telephone; in addition, between 1856 and 1870, he developed more than 30 different kinds of telephones on the bases of this prototype; and

WHEREAS, Antonio Meucci filed a patent caveat in 1871 for his voice communication apparatus which, due to his impoverished condition and inability to pay for its extension, expired in 1874; the United States House of Representatives has recognized that legally, "If Meucci had been able to pay the $10 fee to maintain the caveat after 1874, no patent could have been issued to Bell," and Antonio Meucci would be considered the inventor of the telephone; and

WHEREAS, The question of whether to credit Alexander Graham bell or Antonio Meucci as the true inventor of the telephone is perhaps the single most litigated fact in United States history; and

WHEREAS, In addition, in 2001 and 2002, the United states House of representatives resolved that the life and achievements of Antonio Meucci, should be recognized and his work in the invention of the telephone should be acknowledged: and

WHEREAS, This Assembled Body is pleased to have this opportunity to express its highest admiration for Antonio Meucci, and for al of the individuals whose ideas and inventions merit recognition and appreciation in the grand panorama of the history of our State and Nation; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That this Legislative Body pause in its deliberations to commemorate the 200th Anniversary of the birth of the Italian inventor Antonio Meucci on April 13, 2008; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this Resolution, suitably engrossed, be transmitted to The Garibaldi-Meucci Museum, 420 Tompkins Avenue, Staten Island, New York 10305.

COMMEMORATING the 200th Anniversary of the birth of Guisppe Garibaldi

WHEREAS, Giuseppe Garibaldi was born I the Italian Provincial city of Nice on July 4, 1807; his family was involved in coastal trade and he was certified as a Merchant Marine captain in 1832; and

WHEREAS, During a visit to Taganrog, Russia, April 1833, he met Giovanni Battista Cuneo, a member of the secret movement “Young Italy” (La Giovine Italia); Giuseppe Garibaldi joined and took an oath for the liberation of Italy from Austrian dominance; and

WHEREAS, In November 1833, Giuseppe Garibaldi met Giuseppe Mazzini, an impassioned proponent of Italian unification as a liberal republic through political and social reforms, in Geneva; and

WHEREAS, After joining the Carbonari revolutionary association, Giuseppe Garibaldi participated in a failed Mazzinian insurrection in Piedmont in 1834 and was sentenced to death in absentia by a Genoese court; and

WHEREAS, Giuseppe Garibaldi escaped to Tunisia, eventually finding his way to Brazil, where he encountered Anna Maria Ribeiro da Silva, “Anita,” a woman of Portuguese and American – Indian descent, who eventually became his wife; and

WHEREAS, In 1843, Giuseppe Garibaldi formed the Italian Legion, whose black flag represented Italy in mourning while the volcano at its center symbolized the dormant power in their homeland; and

WHEREAS, While in Uruguay the legion first sported the red shirts, which became the symbol of Giuseppe Garibaldi and his followers; his strong following, mastery of guerrilla warfare, opposition to Brazilian and Argentinean imperialism, and victories in the battles of Cerro and Sant’Antonio in 1846, not only assured the freedom of Uruguay but made him a hero throughout Italy and Europe; and

WHEREAS, With the election of Giovanni Mastai-Ferretti as Pope Pius IX in 1846, Giuseppe Garibaldi offered the papal nuncio the service of his Italian Legion for the liberation of the peninsula and returned to Italy among the turmoil of the revolutions of 1848; and

WHEREAS, At the urging of Giuseppe Mazzini, Giuseppe Garibaldi took up the command of the defense of Rome and his wife fought alongside him; despite their efforts, the city fell on June 30, 1849, and he was forced to flee to the north; Anita died near Ravenna during the retreat; and

WHEREAS, Giuseppe Garibaldi eventually managed to escape abroad, where he met Antonio Mecca, true inventor of the telephone, in 1850 and became a resident of New York; both men lived in the Gothic-revival style, 160-year-old house that is now the Giuseppe Garibaldi-Meucci Museum, Staten Island and worked as candlemakers for some time and

WHEREAS, Afterward, Giuseppe Garibaldi made several voyages to the Pacific and returned to Italy in 1854; the Austro-Piedmontese War broke out in 1859 and he was appointed major general; and

WHEREAS, Giuseppe Garibaldi formed a volunteer unit, the Hunters of the Alps, which was victorious over Austrians at Varese and Como, among other places; however, he was very displeased to learn that his home city of Nice was surrendered to the French in exchange for crucial military assistance; and

WHEREAS, On May 13, 1860, Giuseppe Garibaldi defeated a 3,000-strong Bourbon French garrison at Calatafimi; the next day, he declared himself dictator of Sicily in the name of Victor Emmanuel II of Italy; and

WHEREAS, In his famous meeting with Victor Emmanuel II at Teano on October 26, 1860, Giuseppe Garibaldi greeted him as King of Italy and shook his hand; on November 7, he rode into Naples at the king's side and then retired to the rocky island of Caprera refusing to accept any reward for his services; and

WHEREAS, In 1866, Giuseppe Garibaldi took up arms again against Austria-Hungary in the hope of taking Venetia from Austrian rule; he gathered his Hunters of the Alps once more, now almost 40,000 strong, and led them into the Trentino, where they defeated the Austrians at Bezzecca and continued towards Trento: and

WHEREAS, However, Italian regular forces were quickly defeated at the Sea Battle of Lissa and an armistice was signed, in which Austria ceded Venetia to Italy; Giuseppe Garibaldi Was ordered to stop his advance to Trento and he answered with a short telegram that read, "Obbedisco," "I obey"; and

WHEREAS, After the war, Giuseppe Garibaldi led a political party that agitated for the capture of Rome, the peninsula's ancient capital; he marched on Rome once again in 1867, where he was defeated, taken prisoner and held captive for some time before returning to Caprera; and

WHEREAS, When the Franco-Prussian War broke out in 1870, many Italians favored the Prussians and signed up as volunteers at the Prussian embassy in Florence; after the French garrison was recalled from Rome, the Italian army captured the Papal States without the assistance of Giuseppe Garibaldi, and for the first time since the fall of the Roman Empire, Italy was unified from the Alps to Sicily; and

WHEREAS, Giuseppe Garibaldi spent the rest of his life in Caprera with his wife, Francesca Annosino, and their children and family members; he died on June 2, 1882; and

WHEREAS, There is no question that Giuseppe Garibaldi's popularity, skill, heroism and military exploits made the unification of Italy possible and he served as a global example of 19th century revolutionary nationalism and liberalism; now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That this Legislative Body pause in its deliberations to commemorate the 200th Anniversary of the birth of Giuseppe Garibaldi; and be it further
